Thousands of men, women and children who had spent the day at nearby Long Island resorts had great difficulty in getting back to this city last night, owing to a strike on the New York and Queens County Electric Railroad Company's lines running out of Long Island City.

If the plans of the motormen and conductors had been carried out not a car wheel would have turned in that section, but only about one hundred men went out on strike at the behest of their leaders, and more than half the cars ran during the early part of the night.

The trouble was due ostensibly to the suspension of four men last Wednesday afternoon from the employ of the railroad company to take them back.

Then, when the superintendent of the road refused to reinstate them, pending an investigation, he was told that he must recognize the organization if the men were trying to effect. After declaring that the men were not on strike, if they did not exist, the superintendent was told that he would have until Sunday noon to con-

The men were quietly notified yesterday afternoon to meet at Three Mile Hotel, in Manhattan, at 10 o'clock. They had been a full meeting the road would have been crippled; but only about a hundred men were present. The men were to hold another conference with the railway officials at noon to-day.

away, "operated by the New York and North Shore Trolley Company," and the "other interests, has almost as great a patronage."

All day yesterday the outbound cars from the lower level were filled with passengers. When fifty cars had been turned into the barns by the "regulars" and there were no "extras" to work the cars, the cars on the lower level began to jam. The cars that were still running were jammed. Men hung to the running boards and dashboards, and some even tried to climb the roof.

"Not all the cars were run to the ferry and hundreds were forced to trudge for many blocks to the high level," said a bystander. "There was no great disorder, but many bitter complaints, especially from women."

as chairman, and including John McGoldrick, John Reynolds, Louis Schafer and John Wintress, called on Manager Fuller and said they were a grievance committee representing the employees. They demanded the reinstatement of the suspended men.

Mr. Fuller said he had no objection to settling the men at work pending an investigation. Then he was told that he must recognize the union. This he refused to do. The strike yesterday resumed.

Police are blocking the trolley lines in the vicinity of Jamaica last night to stop threatened wire cutting. Deputy Commissioner Pizer had two hundred men sent from Brooklyn and drew upon Manhattan for a hundred more to assist the Long Island and forces in maintaining order.

Inspector Kane kept in close communication all day with Acting Police Commissioner Bristain and Deputy Commissioner Pizer, receiving telephone messages from them and responding with the most recent information in his possession. All the police in Queens Borough are on duty with reinforcements and they are fully prepared for any trouble.
